LEWIS WEIGHS DECISION TO CALL OFF STRIKE THREAT

May Risk Contempt Charges Under Federal Court Order

TIME DRAWS NEAR

Heads of Key Government Departments Act Under Specific Orders

By Phillips J. Peck

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(INS)—U. S. president John L. Lewis today weighed a decision of withdrawing strike notice to his 400,000 soft coal miners or risking contempt charges under a Federal Court order designed to block the disastrous inter mine shutdown.

With the strike deadline less than hours away, the showdown battle between Lewis and the government is climaxed in court action retaining the 66-year-old union leader "from permitting to continue effect" his termination of the government-UMW wage contract at midnight tomorrow.

The heads of key government departments, acting under specific directions from President Truman, lined in the appeal to district Judge Alan Goldsborough for issuance of the temporary restraining order. They labeled the termination notice a fact and in effect, a call to strike.

Interior Secretary J. A. Krug, director of the government-seized bituminous mines, told the Court UMW members would halt work at midnight tomorrow unless the contract termination edict was "withdrawn and cancelled."

The notice constitutes the last word the well-disciplined miners have had from Lewis and his policy is "no contract, no work." Upwards of 23,000 men, producing over 7,000 tons of coal daily, already have left the pits in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois and other areas.

At UMW headquarters, Lewis and a battery of legal aides adopted a "no comment" attitude as they pondered the unexpected turn of events. There was no indication as to whether Lewis would back down or take up the Government's challenge to a finish fight.

In 1919, when he was acting president of the UMW, Lewis bowed to Federal Court injunction and called off a post World War I miners' strike.

Justice Department spokesmen said that disobedience of Judge Goldsborough's order would leave the mine union leader subject to contempt charges.

Held Father of Four In A Stabbing Case

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 19.—The father of four children was held by Morrisville police in the near-fatal stabbing in a saloon of 22-year-old William Palmer, of Union street.

Police Chief Harry F. Christ said the prisoner is Robert Lee Evans, 6, of Bank street. Evans was committed to the Bucks County Jail at Doylestown on order of Justice of the Peace Neal Nolan pending outcome of Palmer's injuries.

Loss of blood from stab wounds on the abdomen, chest and left arm put Palmer in Mercer Hospital, Trenton, N. J., Friday night in a serious condition. Transfusions were given the victim with blood donated by members of Morrisville Alumni football team.

Palmer was taken to the hospital by Patrolman Elmer Wiley of Morrisville. Chief Christ said both Evans and Palmer are employed in the Vulcanized Rubber Co. plant.

The youth was arrested last week by Maryland state police after a teletype flier had been sent out at request of Doylestown state police sub-station.

Trooper J. J. Sovelin and Bucks Co. Detective William L. Stackhouse, went to Maryland for Dillman, who is charged with robbing an Upper Black Eddy garage. Dillman was in Bucks Co. court previously, charged with theft of an automobile.

The Rev. W. H. Christ, pastor of the First Evangelical Church, Perkasie, and Mrs. Christ a few days ago observed their golden wedding anniversary when, before a capacity audience in Perkasie church they reaffirmed their nuptial vows with a complete wedding party.

A large cake was cut by the bride of half a century ago, and distributed among the guests. The entire anniversary program was planned and executed by the Kings Daughters Class of the Sunday school. In addition to many cards, flowers and

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Service on all railroads using coal-burning locomotives will be cut 25 per cent at midnight next Sunday and controls on industry are expected to follow.

The CIO convention unanimously adopted a resolution rejecting interference in its affairs by the Communists or any other political party. President Murray declared that wages were the most important issue and warned the Republicans not to attempt "the actual crucifixion of American labor."

Speculative activity was a cause of the break in the cotton market, Secretary Anderson said. To prevent a recurrence, the market position of large traders will be published monthly. Loans for the 1946 corn crop will be at 90 per cent of parity, higher than last year, it was announced.

The Senate War Investigating Committee decided to open hearings tomorrow on relations between Senator Bilbo and war contractors.

The long deadlock in the Council of Foreign Ministers over the policing of the Free Territory of Trieste was broken when Foreign Minister Molotov agreed to major proposals put forward by the Western powers.

"LIVING BLOOD BANK" TO BE ESTABLISHED

The Morrisville Rotary Club Puts Project As First On Its List

ALSO TO TYPE BLOOD

MORRISVILLE, Nov. 19.—A "living blood bank" is to be established for Morrisville residents. The Morrisville Rotary Club has placed this project first on its list.

Need for such a blood bank has been vividly demonstrated in the past few weeks. Club President C. Percy Moon declared yesterday. Several Morrisville residents, in need of emergency blood transfusions, have learned they are ineligible to draw on the Trenton, N. J. blood bank because they are not residents of that city. As a result, there have been several emergency calls for blood donors.

Present plans of the club call for the recording of the blood type of as many Morrisville residents as will volunteer for the survey. This index of Morrisville residents and their blood types will be kept in an accessible location. Then, when blood transfusions are necessary, persons with the correct blood type can be contacted and asked if they will volunteer to give some of their blood to the person in need of it.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Off Balance

Washington, Nov. 19. ADMITTEDLY, the recent election was pretty tough on the professional "liberals" who were the most vehement of the Democratic spokesmen in the last campaign and the most conspicuously flattened out by the results. But not until these gentlemen recovered the power of speech a few days ago was it realized how really hard they had been hit.

At no time, of course, have they ever been noted for fairness, balance or poise. In the past their public utterances have been largely free from logic and certainly not distinguished by accuracy or judgment. However, they usually made some kind of sense. For the time being that seems to have been knocked out of them. In the last ten days, there have been several statements from "liberal" sources of such extraordinary nature as to cause some misgivings as to whether they have not completely lost their bearings.

For example, there is the explanation of the result by a committee of the Conference of Progressives which is "liberal" to the last degree. According to this committee, the result was no repudiation of

EMPLOYMENT SERVICE NOW UNDER THE STATE

Local Office Now Operating As Penna. State Employment Service

ANNOUNCE HOURS

The employment office located at 216 Mill street will in the future be known as the Pennsylvania State Employment Service office, instead of U. S. Employment Service. The change was brought about when the U. S. Employment Service local offices of administration were transferred to the 48 states and the territories.

The Penna. State Employment Service is now operating under the Penna. Dept. of Labor and Industry, whereas the U. S. Employment Service was under jurisdiction of the United States Dept. of Labor.

Change in name and in office hours are in reality about the only ones noted, states the manager of the Bristol office, Francis L. Matthews. New hours are from 8:30 a. m. to noon, and from one to five p. m.

Although under state supervision the local office force will continue to pay unemployment compensation claims and servicemen's readjustment allowances. There is also here a field accounting service for the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

Services now rendered by the local office to both employers and applicants, include:

1. The maintenance of an effective placement service, facilitating the employment and reemployment of veterans and other workers.
2. Special employment counseling and placement services to veterans as provided in the Servicemen's Readjustment Act (G. I. Bill).
3. Assisting employer and labor organizations in the use of personnel tools and techniques to improve personnel management services.
4. Gathering and disseminating labor market analysis and information to assist workers in choosing among various employment opportunities, and employers in plant location and production scheduling.
5. Cooperation with community organizations and government agencies in programs to increase economic activity and maintain high levels of employment.

TARIFF CHANGES

One of the astonishing opinions which is being circulated among political commentators is that the recent Republican victory will mean no changes in foreign policy.

Whether this is an honest blunder into which persons who ought to know better have innocently fallen, or is sheer and malicious propaganda, is less to the point than whether the conclusion is accurate.

It requires little thought to realize that profound and sweeping changes are inevitable, both in the peace program of the United Nations and in the matter of foreign trade.

As for peace, it would be preposterous to argue that even so simple a factor as the changed status of one man—Senator Vandenberg—would not in itself greatly affect the future United Nations policy. Senator Vandenberg has been a minority figure, named out of a sentiment of political expediency by a Democratic President, and able to do little to sway his fellow delegates.

Now he is the spokesman of the strong majority political party of the nation, better able, perhaps, to commit the American people to a policy than the actual head of the delegation, Secretary Byrnes himself.

When the balance of power thus has shifted in the key delegation to United Nations' sessions, how absurd to try to insist no changes in policy will result.

POINTS OUT TO TEACHERS BRACKET SALARY DANGERS

"Floors in all the Weak with the Strong" Senator F. P. Hare Advises

IS SPEAKER AT RALLY

600 School Directors, Teachers Meet; Will Get More Money Speaker Advises

DOYLESTOWN, Nov. 19.—Declaring that the danger in setting bracket salaries is because it floors in all the weak with the strong, Senator Fred P. Hare of Somerset County, speaking at a rally of Bucks County school teachers in the court house here last evening said: "It has a tendency to mediocrity, and we want no mediocrity in the classroom. The public must be educated to pay the bill, and only if the schools progress has the nation grown up."

With solidarity and enthusiasm of a convention—the teachers carried standards indicating the name of their school district and were spontaneous in their outbursts of applause. Nearly 600 school directors, teachers and visitors jammed the court house.

Senator Hare, who served as a teacher and one time as a high school principal before entering politics, formally admitted that he left the profession to earn more money. "We can only meet the educational problems as you men and women are doing here tonight. I want each and everyone of you to become teachers of children rather than teachers of subject matter. Teach your children not to be afraid to get their hands dirty. The white collar has more often strangled than it has developed."

"You are going to get more money, but the public will want better teachers and better citizens. Only as the state grows can Bucks County grow, and only as Bucks County grows can the state grow."

"Do you realize that to put into effect the '$1400 Bill' alone would require $248,000,000?"

Senator Hare, who pointed out that the great mass of teachers in Pennsylvania are rural, estimated there are 43,000 teachers in the third and fourth class districts.

"For the last quarter of a century, you have been robbed in a statewide program. There are no more independent 'cusses' than those

He Parked His Car (cass)

(By "The Stroller")

A side-walk parking space was occupied the other day by a "paying patron"—who did his bit as far as the borough parking meter fees are concerned.

The man in question zig-zagged down Mill street, and leaned against a parking meter as he waited for a bus to take him to his home in a neighboring town. Becoming curious as to his supporting post, he peered at the words on the parking meter, and seeing the dial at zero, reached into his pocket, produced a nickel and dropped it into the slot.

Occasionally he would leave his parking spot, wander into the street and look in vain for the bus he awaited. Back again at the meter his hand again slid into his pocket and another nickel popped into the meter.

A bleary "weather eye" was kept by him on the dial, and apparently not wanting to "over-run" his parking time, the third nickel disappeared into the slot.

So today the borough meter treasury is 15 cents richer, and the conscience of an inebriated "Mr. Milquetoast" is a free one.

ATOMIC RAYS AND HEREDITY

When Dr. Herman J. Muller, professor of zoology at Indiana University, received the announcement that he had been awarded this year's Nobel Prize in medicine, he was attending a scientific meeting in Washington. Newspaper men who interviewed him were interested in the relationship between his experiments with X-rays on fruit flies and the possible effect of atomic rays. For several years Dr. Muller has been studying the effects of X-rays and other rays such as are produced by atomic fission, on insects and animals.

"A tiny fruit fly has thousands of genes, an agent for the transmission of heredity characteristics," Dr. Muller said. "There is no reason to suppose that a human being has less. These genes may be changed by exposure to certain rays. This causes changes in the physical characteristics passed from parent to offspring. While the genes are changed immediately, the actual physical changes may not be manifest for generations—perhaps for 1,000 years in the case of human beings. The atomic bomb rays are the kind that cause changes, and at Nagasaki and Hiroshima it is likely these changes will not be manifest for 1,000 years. The effects pile up with the generations."

Assuming the correctness of Dr. Muller's conclusions, the atomic bomb becomes all the more devastating. There was reason to believe, after two Japanese cities had been bombed, that the chief effect was death to more than 100,000 persons and physical injuries that might continue indefinitely. But here is a theory that the two bombs dropped on enemy territory will continue their ill effects for ten centuries as the survivors transmit physical impairments to their children.

Thus war's latest weapon becomes even more horrible in its potentialities.

PEACETIME RESERVE

The United States Army is steadily building toward the formation of a strong peacetime reserve, lack of which delayed the nation's victory effort in the recent conflict. Announcement that enlistments have reached nearly 1,000,000 is evidence not only that the decision to increase inducements for combat veterans to remain on reserve has paid off, but also of a realization on the part of these men of the responsibility they have to their country.

Under the expanded reserve program emphasis is not being confined to the training of officer personnel, as in the past. A trained enlisted force also is being fostered, and the enrollment to date consists of 450,000 officers and 525,000 enlisted men. The corps will be drilled in airborne armored tactics, and would form a nucleus of real strength in case of future national emergency. Its further upbuilding may provide the answer to the question of ending the draft.

With prices of automobiles increasing one observer fears the time may come when no one can buy a new car except those who make them.

In the field of foreign trade, the shift is even more conspicuous and complete, for Congress is in full control of tariff questions, and Congress has moved from a Democratic to a Republican majority.

Typical of those who do not or will not face the realities of what this transfer of power means in the field of foreign trade is the columnist, Paul Mallon.

In a recent article he left actualities far behind, in discussing this subject, and dealt almost exclusively with fairy-tale versions of history.

"The tariff question," he said, "has become almost inconsequential in all aspects, actual and political."

Trying to back up this conclusion, he made various observations about past events which, if they had been accurate, might or might not have proved something; but which were so fantastically remote from facts that they would confuse anyone—including the columnist himself!

For instance, he said that "the philosophy of the Republican Tariff act of 25 years ago was one of isolation, to build up American industry by protecting its high prices against foreign competition."

No statement on the subject could be more misleading. The philosophy of the tariff act of 25 years ago was self-preservation—a desperate effort to break a sudden depression and to rescue American industry from disaster.

The post-war depression of that period was a delayed-action result of tariff changes made at the outset of the Wilson Administration. Then as now normal world trade had been disrupted by war for a period of years; and the outside competition resulting from tariff slashes was not felt until foreign production and shipping returned to normal. It struck the American economy a terrifying blow. Factories closed across this nation, unemployment soared, business went into a tailspin.

Congress correctly judged the cause, and found the cure. Protective tariffs were restored—with the aid, incidentally, of many Democratic votes. Promptly the nation's economy swung back to an even keel, and the "boom times" of the Twenties began.

Calling this a "philosophy of isolation" is ridiculous. Moreover, it is dangerous. It is ignoring the valuable lessons to be learned from history, and is swapping cause-and-effect realities for fiction.

The important fact is that the stage is set again for the same sort of depression. History is repeating itself. Various foreign nations got the jump on the United States in reconversion. The Scandinavian countries, England herself in some commodities, part of France, Czechoslovakia and Poland—these lands are now nearly in position for mass production of articles to compete with American output. Tariff protections have been torn to shreds. All that is needed now is ships.

This is a condition, not a theory. Republicans see it. Only because other more urgent matters such as finance and labor are before them in Congress is the subject of tariffs apt to be postponed.

As for the general public's thinking, it may be that the question is not yet fully crystalized. It is true that the issue of tariffs played small part in the election.

But it will crystalize fast enough when one or more major industries are thrown into tailspins by floods of foreign goods at less than American costs of production. It is then that there will be a mad scramble to get back aboard the good ship of protective tariff—just as twenty-five years ago.

It is then that American labor will re-discover what it sometimes seems unhappily to be a fact that each generation has to learn for itself—that the real beneficiaries of protective tariffs are working people who want to keep the higher American standards of living which are possible only under such protection.

It is then that the slippery use of the words "high prices," given above in the Paul Mallon quotation as being the objective of protective tariffs, will be revealed; and that it will be shown that "high wages," not high prices, are the real factor which protection protects.

Meanwhile, the certainty with which a shift of policy towards a protective tariff is bound to come can be shown in another detail which Mr. Mallon overlooks. That is the fact that the Congressional Ways and Means Committee, arbiter of tariff questions, now automatically shifts into the hands of a group of Republicans who are ardent exponents of the protectionist theory.

Anyone who thinks that they have weakened in their faith ought to read again the record of the long series of hearings last year on the question of extending the Reciprocal Trade Agreements program.

IT TAKES MANY PEOPLE and many things to keep on giving you the best telephone service in the world.

It takes a lot of money—investors' money—to provide the facilities. There's an investment of $240 behind your telephone and every one of the 24,000,000 telephones in the Bell System.

It takes good management and good employees to operate these facilities. There are 575,000 Bell System employees—many in management and supervisory positions.

It takes faith in the future. The Bell System is busy right now on a $2,000,000,000 building and expansion program—to catch up with the nation's needs and to give you more and better service than ever before.

the Rev. and Mrs. Christ received a purse of $132 from the congregation. Another gift was a pair of 50 golden roses.

Rev. Mr. Christ is a native of Schuylkill county, and Mrs. Christ, who before her marriage was Miss Laura Elizabeth Gabel, is a native of Doylestown. Both are graduates of the Kutztown State Normal School. They were united in marriage at Doylestown on Nov. 1936 by Dr. George B. Hanscher.

Mrs. Mae W. Barnett, Wynne, died last week in Quaker Community Hospital of injuries suffered in a plunge through second-story floor to a room below.

Mrs. Barnett and her husband, president of the Barnett Canning and Bag Company, Philadelphia, are inspecting the farm house of a man English, near Quakertown, who is undergoing renovations. The house of the family said. She is in a second floor room when boards gave way, and she plunged to the floor below.

Her death was caused by head injuries, physicians said. In addition to her husband she is survived by a daughter, Miss Doris Mae Barnett.

Wis Weighs Decision To Call Off Strike Threat empt of court proceedings with penalties—fine or imprisonment—to the court.

The court set Nov. 27 as the date for a hearing on the Government's motion for a permanent injunction. Lewis can have a hearing 48 hours notice to the government and may get one even quicker, it wants it.

Justice Department officials indicated that the 48-hour rule would be waived in the current grave situation.

The Court order was issued after government had taken a series of steps to cope with a possible strike. These were:

1. "Freeze" on all bituminous supplies; an appeal to the miners to stay on the job, and an order from the Office of Defense Transportation to coal-burning railroads to cut passenger service 25 per cent starting Sunday night. Freight reductions are being considered.

The Government added that unilateral termination of the agreement, as contemplated by the UMW, would "ignore the Congressional act" as enacted in the war power disputes act which bans government-seized properties.

The Justice Department memorandum hinted at further legal action under this statute, if the strike occurs. It said:

"In issuing the notice, therefore, in continuing to permit the no-strike to remain outstanding, the defendants coerce, intimidate, induce, encourage the mine workers to interfere by strike and other interferences with the operation of the mines in the Government's possession."

The memorandum observed that such acts are punishable as crimes.

The Government argued that the Norris-La Guardia Act, which prohibits the issuance of injunctions to restrain labor unions in disputes affecting private employers and their employees, is not involved in the current case. Its memorandum stated:

"... The sovereign, in the exercise of its functions, can at no time be held to be engaged in a labor dispute with private persons."

"In no sense is that an attack upon the right of labor to organize or to bargain collectively, nor is this an attempt to use judicial power in the area of economic strife which exists between employer and employee. The entire case falls well outside the area designed to be covered by the Norris-La Guardia act."

Points Out to Teachers Bracket Salary Dangers

coming out of the rural sections. Philadelphia, when it comes to a concerted action, has 41 votes and Pittsburgh has 27. The most independent of our legislators are those coming from the farming areas. One thing your meeting is doing tonight is that it is focussing attention and crystallizing unity in your cause."

Chiding the teachers because teaching is often sneeringly referred to as an "old man's profession," Senator Hare remarked that teachers can meet that challenge by keeping interested in growing.

"The enormity of educational problems in this state is state-wide, and too few people take heed and ponder on it. I know of one situation where there are 680 teachers, and of that number 42% are registered and vote. The other 58% have no business in the classroom whatsoever, trying to make boys and girls into citizens when they themselves don't qualify."

"A salary of $2400 a year isn't too much. But, I want you teachers to do a lot of thinking before you start your drive. Continue your professional attitude and allow yourselves to be led by brains and not muscle. Teachers can't place the blame on the government."

The Court order was issued after government had taken a series of steps to cope with a possible strike. These were:

Lady Throws Cane Away After Taking New Rhu-Aid Formula

One lady, who was unable to walk 6 weeks ago, due to rheumatic pains, says she is enjoying a normal life once again since she took Rhu-AID. In fact, she says she has thrown her cane away. This lady had to stay in the house for weeks at a time, unable to get out much. Rheumatic pains centered in the joints of her knees and ankles. She says she felt stiff all over. But in less than a week's time, when she started taking Rhu-AID, the awful rheumatic pains disappeared from her legs and ankles. She is well and happy today and says she wouldn't take a fortune for the relief Rhu-AID has given her.

Rhu-AID is the new liquid formula containing three valuable medical ingredients. These Three Great Medicines, all blended into one, go right to the very cause of rheumatic and neuritic aches and pains. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! dearest treasure in Pennsylvania in a category where a child no longer respects him. For 25 years, since the time of Dr. Finegan, the teachers in Pennsylvania have played Rip Van Winkle until the Tenure Bill came along. As the standards of the profession increased, the teachers have more suddenly come alive.

"Only a state blind to its own potentialities. No state is blind except its teachers are blind. You and I make the mistake of letting people forget the lasting values which grow out of education and remember only the trivialities," Senator Hare said.

Senator Hare was presented by Assemblyman Thomas B. Stockham. Assemblyman Stockham pleaded to the teachers to remember that a part of their pay for their work is measured in terms of consecration. Assemblyman Wilson Yeakey, who was elected to the State Legislature in 1928, was also presented to the group.

"Living Blood Bank" To Be Established

Harry M. Lair is chairman of the club's blood bank committee. He said his group is developing plans for canvassing the borough to secure as many volunteers for the blood bank as possible. The time and place where Morrisville residents can have their blood typed will be announced shortly, Lair declared.

Persons who volunteer to join the blood bank, Lair emphasized, will not be required to give any of their blood at the present time. They will merely undergo a test to determine their blood type. They will, however, be available for any transfusions needed in the future.

testatrix died October 15, and her will was executed May 14.

Florence Fox Godshall, Peleble Hill, was named executrix of the estate of Emma Miller Fox, Doylestown township, which was valued at $2,000 and the real estate consisted of a house and five acres on Cherry Lane in Doylestown township. In a will written September 6, 1923, the testatrix directed that her husband, Charles, should be the heir and in the event of his death a daughter, Florence F. Godshall should be the beneficiary.

Christmas Gifts Will Be Bestowed On Veterans

LANGHORNE, Nov. 19—A total of $50 was voted to be expended on Christmas gifts for hospitalized ex-service men and women, when members of American Legion Auxiliary met in Jesse W. Soby Post home, here, last evening. The gifts will be divided between Naval Hospital, Philadelphia; Coatesville, Valley Forge, Perry Point, Aspinwall, South Mountain, Otter and Swarthmore Annex Hospitals.

Members also plan to make "ditty bags" for distribution at Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, and fill them with gifts. Items will also be provided for additional "ditty bags."

Members were informed that all children at Scotland School have now been "adopted" by units. Members were reminded when doing Christmas shopping to place the hospitalized veterans on their lists. Bi-County Council of Auxiliaries will care for gifts for eight wards at Naval Hospital at the coming Christmas-tide.

It was reported that over $1,000 has been received for the four families who lost their homes and household goods and clothing by fire at Trevoze a few weeks ago, the Auxiliary aiding in some money-raising projects.

Mrs. James Tracy, of Hulmeville, presided at the session, with minutes in charge of Mrs. Frank Cassidy. These two also gave reports of the presidents' and secretaries' conferences, and child welfare and rehabilitation conferences held at Harrisburg.

Several new members were in attendance. The unit passed its quota for membership by more than 35 per cent at the designated time, membership being now 223. It was reported that a junior auxiliary was formed last week, with nine in attendance.

A Christmas party will be held in connection with the December meeting on the 16th of the month in Cadet Hall. There is also arranged a Thanksgiving dance for Saturday evening, Nov. 23rd, at the country club. The post and auxiliary will serve a roast beef dinner on Sunday, December 8th, in Langhorne Fire Co. station, this being open to the public.

Young men still in the armed forces, sons of post and auxiliary members, will each be sent a gift of money and a handkerchief at the holiday season.

Any Gold Star mothers of this area were invited to join the newly-formed Gold Star Mother unit at Bristol.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. William Harding and Mrs. Edith Darrah.

Automobile Production Is at Post-War Peak

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—The Civilian Production Administration announced today that passenger automobile output for October reached a new post-war peak of 285,562 units, a gain of 46,152 over September.

CPA said this rate was better than the monthly rate for either 1938 or 1939 but slightly lower than the monthly rate for 1940 and 1941.

Truck production also increased to a post-war monthly high of 109,953 units, a gain of 17,939 over September.

CPA estimated that the 1946 output would reach about 2,200,000 cars as compared with 1941 production of 3,753,309 units and 3,914,511 in 1937. Manufacturers' forecasts were given by CPA as 271,315 units for November, 294,199 for December and 344,448 for January.
